“R.B. ARCHIPELAGO”
Mary MacDougall

Mary MacDougall (b.1983, Australia) is interested in the physicality of paint, subjects in transition and questions of perspective. Forms in her work sometimes appear ancient and quiet, while at other times like super-heated rock, flowing and coagulating.

Her recent drawings, R.B. Archipelago, are brief visual dispatches in the spirit of a postcard text; windy scenes from an imagined island tour. This series was also published as an artist book in collaboration with Cooperative Editions (Co-Ed), New York, 2017.

Mary lives and works in Brooklyn, New York. Her first solo exhibition at READING ROOM opens in February 2018.

*READING ROOM is an independent, hybrid exhibition space and library. The gallery collaborates with a small group of artists, developing a program of exhibitions, publications, film screenings and conversations. Mary MacDougall's R.B. Archipelago, presented by READING ROOM, hosted by Dream, Miami is a prelude to the opening of the space, scheduled for January 2018 in Melbourne, Australia.
